Ellsworth Gregory, President of the Carmel Valley History Society, accepts a contribution from the Carmel Valley Recreation and Park District Board of Directors members, Randy Randazzo and Sherrie May for the refurbishment of the historical site board in the park. Craftsmen Art Taylor and Ed McGlochlin made the display look better than new.

Triathlon on June 9. She recently returned from an "invitation-only" triathlon in Japan, where she competed against a select number of junior triathletes from several other countries.

Brockman has been one of the top Junior (19 and under) triathletes in the U.S. for the past two years, and will receive international racing experience from this journey.

The triathlon, a race made up of three consecutive individual events varies in its distance. The most common distance is often referred to as the "international" length. Such is the case in Tokyo, which consists of a 1.5Km swim, a 40 Km bike, and a 19Km run.

This race will be comprised of young athletes from 22 different countries. Four countries, the United States, Australia, New Zealand and Canada received these special invitations to select one male and one female athlete to compete. The invited athletes, such as Courtney, received expense-free domestic and international airfare, hotel, meals and typically gracious Japanese hospitality.

Courtney L. Brockman, 19, of Carmel Valley, attended All Saints Day School, Santa Catalina High School, and is currently enrolled as a sophomore at California Polytechnic University.

In 1995, she was elected as first runner-up at the California Salinas Rodeo Contest.

In 1993, she was crowned Miss Carmel Valley Ranchers Day Queen.

In 1994 she was awarded a scholarship trip to Greece, attending the American Farm School.

She volunteered in the Emergency Room at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula as a Candy Striper.

She swam on the Barracuda Swim Team for 10 years, on the Varsity swim team at Santa Catalina High School, was an active member of the Buckeye 4-H Club, played on the Santa Catalina High School softball team, is a member of the Carmel Valley Triathlon Club, member of the Cal Poly Triathlon Team and a member of the SLO Roadrunners Club.

Lions!

It all began on February 3, 1994, when tourists, gazing down on the idyllic landscape of the Serengeti National Park, in Tanzania, from a hot air balloon, saw, among the peaceful zebra and wildebeest herds, something strange ... a lion, staggering in tight circles, unable to breathe. He died during the night ... only his head was left by the hyenas.

Park researchers began finding lions dead, and dying with the same behavior .... convulsions, thrashing, jerking, facial contortion.

With help from laboratories at the University of Tennessee, and Cornell University virologist Max Appel, Melody Roelke-Parker, chief vet of the Tanzanian National Park Service, and Dr. Craig Packer, behavioral ecologist and professor at the University of Minnesota, identified the sickness as canine distemper.

Yep, like we get our puppies inoculated for. From the dogs in the villages the distemper, an airborne disease, could have infected scavenging hyenas and jackals who then spread it among the lions at kills.

And so "Project Life Lion" was born. Supervised by Dr. Packer and Melody Roelke-Parker, teams are vaccinating at least 70% of the some 20,000 dogs living in the villages within 30 km of the Serengeti Park boundary.

Vaccines for both distemper and rabies have been donated by pharmaceutical companies. Intervet, Solvay, and Rhone-poulenc. Workers from the Kenya Wildlife Service are assisting the project. John Walsh, International Projects Director for America's powerful and active World Society for the Protection of Animals (WSPA) has helped.

Maybe lions strike you as pretty remote from your world. This so-called "king of beasts", lording it over his family - called a "pride" - out there somewhere in Africa ... or gazing down at you from a moving van - "Let Lion Guard Your Goods" ... or, at the zoo, when you take the kids, pacing, always pacing behind those nice bars.

But this, your cat's most magnificent relative, is an important part of our vanishing wildlife. (The International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources, the IUCN, lists as endangered some 656 mammals and birds, including 123 in Africa alone.) Once numerous in southeast Europe, the Middle East, India, and Africa, he now survives only in Africa south of the Sahara.

He is more or less safe in the 16 parks and reserves Africa has set up, but poaching, the encroachment of land-hungry humans, and the destruction of land productivity by overgrazing are a constant threat.

And he is peculiarly vulnerable. His head still tempts some of our macho hunting types for a wall decoration ... he lives visibly in open country ... young males, excluded from the pride by the leader, may leave the park, and face the guns and poison of the people.

There are some awfully big things still out there ... like global warming ... the population explosion ... world-wide water shortage ... for us to work on, but at least we saved the lions of the Serengeti.

WHAT'S NEXT? Mel Vercoe

Heard part of a news item a few days ago. It was about our forces in Bosnia, some of whom are women soldiers. There were an alarming number of new pregnancies happening each week. How could this be? Can't we send our armed forces to other parts of our planet, as part of our World Policeman mandate, without some of them risking the mission and the honor of America by making the expedition into a vacation trip?

Going back a few years, to pre-World War Two history, I was a member of the Marine detachment on one of our battleships. Sure, some of our guys might have caused a few pregnancies, from time to time, but not among our own personnel, probably mainly because there were not, as far as I know, any lady sailors or lady Marines stationed on any of our ships.

However, we did hear about an incident on one of our battleships, that we found interesting. One or more sailors on one of our ships had smuggled a lady, probably from Los Angeles or Long Beach, onto one of the battleships, and the fleet was at sea on maneuvers for several days before word got out, and she was taken away from her hidden location, and presumably was able to finish the trip in the safety of the officers quarters.

So, I have questions about the readiness of U.S. forces sent to duty in foreign countries, where our forces might, at any time, have to engage in action that would not permit the formality of having a fairly active count of how many were available for combat, and how many would have to stay in quarters because of various stages of pregnancies, or perhaps because of cycle difficulties.

LETTERS to the Editor

Water District Responds to Dilworth

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

MPWMD responds to Dilworth letter.

Subject: Water Wells at Carmel Area Wastewater District Treatment Plant.

This letter is in response to your recent memos (dated July 10 and July 12, 1996), wherein you requested information on the status and production of "drinking water wells" at the Carmel Area Wastewater District (CAWD) plant. In our response to you dated July 12, 1996, we indicated that there is one registered water well on CAWD property, but it has not been in use since 1978. The information in our files has been confirmed by the facilities manager at CAWD, Mr. Sanford Veile.

Mr. Veile also confirmed that at least eight temporary dewatering wells were in use at the CAWD plant for a 9 to 12 month period during the construction of the wastewater reclamation project facilities in 1993 and 1994, These wells were not "drinking water wells" used for potable water consumption, but rather were used to lower the water table in the immediate vicinity of the project's foundation. Water produced from the temporary dewatering wells was not consumed, but was diverted back into the Carmel River away from the foundation site. These temporary dewatering wells were destroyed in August 1994. We have not required registration of temporary dewatering wells, and therefore have no metered production data for these wells, as you requested.

If you need additional information regarding the temporary dewatering wells, we urge you to contact the CAWD directly. Hopefully this information is responsive to your concerns regarding this matter. Please

Rebublicans Attack Drugs

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

Wednesday a reporter asked me if Republicans were sharpening their attack on Clinton's drug record, and why.

I almost laughed in his face. While the media chases around stories about process, the horse race and other non-issues, they have ignored Bill Clinton's abysmal record on drugs.

Narcotics use in America, especially among teenagers, is exploding. After falling for 11 consecutive years under the Reagan and Bush presidencies, drug use is mushrooming again. It has gone up every year Clinton has been in the White House.

Coincidence?... Hardly.

Young people are hearing a different message from the Clinton crowd. You remember how the left snickered when Nancy Reagan said, "Just say no." Well, it made a difference. The Reagans made a difference. Using drugs became socially unacceptable. Combined with a serious law enforcement effort to fight drugs, it led to the 11 year decline in drug use.

What Clinton and his crowd say matters, too. When asked on MTV, the music channel watched by millions of young people, whether he would inhale if he had it to do over again, the President of the United States said, "Sure, if I could." That message was heard by our young people, too. As was Jocelyn Elders' suggestion about the legalization of drugs.

Clinton's "wink and a nod" attitude to potential drug users is hugely compounded by his official actions.

He eviscerated the White House Drug Control Office. Under Clinton, drug interdiction is down. Training for drug enforcement is down. The number of drug agents is down. Drug prosecutions are down, and drug sentencing is down.

No wonder drug use is up. What does Clinton expect when he fills the White House with political appointees whose narcotics records would have disqualified them from serving in any past administration and whose drug use would have prevented their even receiving a security pass.

Working mothers, after more than a decade of hopefully watching drug use fall, now send their kids to school knowing drug use is exploding. Teenage drug use has more than doubled in just three years.

Bill Clinton, who...phony tear in eye...tells us how concerned he is about the children...has run up the white flag in the war on drugs. Clinton is AWOL as usual.

Now why would a reporter think it's surprising Republicans are talking about Bill Clinton's drug record?

National Committee Chairman,

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

Where did the PG Museum go?

On yesterday's visit to the Pacific Grove Museum all I found in its place was the Pebble Beach Company Marketing Showroom. There was a swell exhibit puffing up the company now owned by Lone Cypress Company and Sumitomo Bank. But the natural history exhibits were almost completely missing.

What a shame. I used to go to that Museum to learn about natural history without having to wade through false and misleading corporate propaganda. What a loss to our children.

Who approved this sale of our Museum to Pebble Beach Company? I want a real Museum back.

Is it a coincidence that Pebble Beach Co. wants public support to build the biggest development ever on the Monterey Peninsula? 350 homesites plus guest-houses and caretaker units and swimming pools; huge traffic congestion increase on Holman Highway, on Highway One and through Carmel. Destruction of the revered Jeffers Forest to make yet another golf course. And one display says, "A place worth saving." How ironic. How sad.

A further display tries to get you to believe golf courses are good for the environment. I know golf courses are good for corporate profits, but the environment? That display sounds real credible since it is signed by the head of "The Audubon Society of New York." What they don't tell you is this is not the Audubon we all know and love. A golfer created his own "Audubon Society" just to "certify" golf courses. The real Audubon sued to stop him from using that name.

The truth is golf courses are bad for the environment because they fragment natural ecosystems, pour hundreds of pounds of poisonous chemicals as pesticides on the ground which run off into local streams and golf courses, use a huge percentage (thousands of acre feet) of our peninsula drinking water that could be used by residents.

I first played golf at PG High School. It's a nice game. But we've already got 17 golf courses within 15 minutes of downtown Monterey. Those golf courses use at least 10 percent of our local drinking water. We don't need another golf course.

But we now need a Natural History Museum.

What do we have to do to get ours back?

COMPUTER TALK

Val Healey

Part 21 - An introduction to computers at a naively simple level

Setting the video resolution of a computer to higher values makes ikons and text look smaller, which can be useful if you like to keep many windows open at a time. It makes the monitor appear bigger. Drivers come with the video card, but some may already be present in the operating system. To install them one needs to choose them from a list that the installation program presents.

The display on the monitor is achieved by the "guns" which scan the screen both horizontally and vertically, thereby providing the necessary information to each pixel. The horizontal scan rates are very high, usually 35 to 60 khz (35,000 to 60,000 times per second), whereas the vertical rates, often called the "refresh" rates, are typically 50-75 hz (50 to 75 times per second). Some monitors can self-adjust to whatever the video card provides; others have a range of fixed rates. It is most important not to drive a monitor at frequencies higher than those for which it was designed or severe damage may occur. Refresh rates that are too low will lead to flickering of the display and eyestrain and fatigue of the person viewing it. "Non-interlaced" (ni) monitors can scan the screen a line at a time from top to bottom and then start again. "Interlaced" monitors scan half the picture - every other line in the display - and then scan the other half. They use lower refresh rates and so cost less than the ni ones, which provide a better picture.

The guns, which are enclosed in a glass "cathode ray tube" (crt), must be a certain distance from the screen in the monitor and this leads to a very bulky unit, with the depth often being greater than the screen size. Monitor sizes are approximately the length of the diagonal of the screen. The smallest practical one is the 14", which usually has a viewable length of about 13", and costs about $250. The 15" typically has a viewable diagonal of about 14" and costs about $350. The next step up is 17" and the price rises to about $650.

Another factor to consider is the "dot pitch" (dp) size - the distance between the pixels. The smaller the value the greater the detail than can be seen on the screen. To avoid graininess in the picture the dp should be 0.28 mm or less for monitors 15" or smaller and 0.31 mm or less for larger monitors. The older 0.39 mm dp monitors should be avoided except for very uncritical use.

The color depth is chosen from 16 colors, 256, 65,536 or 16 million approximately, whatever is available to the card and monitor. In the case of 16 colors the whole color spectrum from far red through the ultraviolet is divided into a mere 16 colors, which gives very poor rendering of images. For realistic displays, there should be at least 256 colors visible. As we will see later, the amount of information in an image rises very rapidly with the number of colors.

It is essential that graphics cards have considerable memory on board. One mb is an absolute minimum for reasonable graphics performance and speed of handling images, with a card of at least 800 x 600 resolution and 256 colors. To view text only, 256 or 512 kb would be quite adequate. For demanding work with images, at least two mb should be used. Furthermore, there are two main kinds of memory for these cards. (Dram (dynamic ram), which costs least, and vram (video ram) which is much more expensive. Dram is much slower, since reads and writes must be done separately, and it must be constantly refreshed. Vram was developed for video and is much faster because it can be read from, and written to, simultaneously and is essential for high quality multi-media systems.

In the next part we will finish with a discussion of radiation from monitors and energy efficiency.

"The lead story deserves in-depth analysis. You've got 12 seconds."

Understanding Mello-Roos

In purchasing your new home, your future monthly payments will be made up of principal, interest, real property taxes and insurance, but what is the tax for the Community Facilities District, otherwise known as a Mello-Roos District? The California Land Title Association (CLTA) has answered some of the questions most commonly asked about the Mello-Roos Community Facilities Act.

Q. What is a Mello-Roos District?

A. A Mello-Roos District is an area where a special tax is imposed on those real property owners within a Community Facilities District. This district has chosen to seek public financing through the sale of bonds for the purpose of financing certain public improvements and services. These services may include streets, water, sewage and drainage, electricity, infrastructure, schools, parks and police protection to newly developing areas. The tax you pay is used to make the payments of principal and interest on the bonds.

Q. What are my Mello-Roos taxes paying for?

A. Your taxes may be paying for both services and facilities. The services may be financed only to the extent of new growth, and services include: police protection, fire protection, ambulance and paramedic services, recreation program services, library services, the operation and maintenance of parks, parkways and open-space, museums, cultural facilities, flood and storm protection, and services for the removal of any threatening hazardous substance. Facilities which may be financed under the Act include: property with an estimated useful life of five years or longer, parks, recreation facilities, parkway facilities, open space facilities, elementary and secondary school sites and structures, libraries, child care facilities, natural gas pipeline facilities, telephone lines, facilities to transmit and distribute electrical energy, cable television lines, and others.

Q. When do I pay these taxes?

A. By purchasing an interest in a subdivision within a Community Facilities District you can expect to be assessed for a Mello-Roos tax which will typically be collected with your general property tax bill. These special tax payments are subject to the same penalties that apply to regular property taxes.

Q. What happens if a general tax payment is not made on time?

A. Because the Mello-Roos tax is typically collected with your general property tax bill, the Facilities District that obtained the lien may withdraw the assessment from the tax roll and commence judicial foreclosure.

Q. What is the basis for the tax?

A. Most special taxes levied on properties within these districts have been structured on the basis of density of development, square footage of construction, or flat acreage charges. The act, however, allows for considerable flexibility in the method of apportionment of taxes, and the local agencies may have established an entirely different method of levying the special tax against property in the district in question.

Q. How much will the Mello-Roos payment be?

A. The amount of tax may vary from year to year, but may not exceed the maximum amount specified when the district was created. In the case of the purchase of a new house within a subdivision, the maximum amount of the tax will be specified in the public report. The Resolution of Formation must specify the rate, method of apportionment, and manner of collection of the special tax in sufficient detail to allow each landowner or resident within the proposed district to estimate the

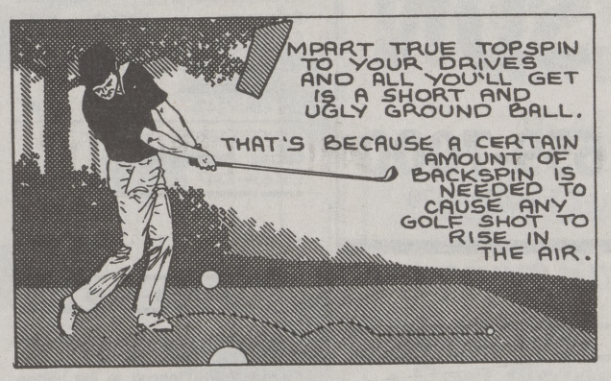
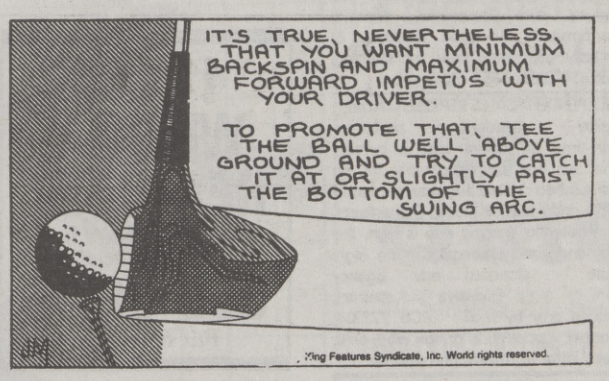
Play Better Golf with JACK NICKLAUS



MPART TRUE TOPSPIN TO YOUR DRIVES AND ALL YOU'LL GET IS A SHORT AND UGLY GROUND BALL.
THAT'S BECAUSE A CERTAIN AMOUNT OF BACKSPIN IS NEEDED TO CAUSE ANY GOLF SHOT TO RISE IN THE AIR.



IT'S TRUE, NEVERTHELESS, THAT YOU WANT MINIMUM BACKSPIN AND MAXIMUM FORWARD IMPETUS WITH YOUR DRIVER.
TO PROMOTE THAT, TEE THE BALL WELL ABOVE GROUND AND TRY TO CATCH IT AT OR SLIGHTLY PAST THE BOTTOM OF THE SWING ARC.

maximum amount that he or she will have to pay.

Q. How is the special tax reflected on the real property records?

A. The special tax is a lien on your property, essentially like a regular tax lien. The lien is recorded as a "Notice of Special Tax Lien" which is a continuing lien to secure each levy of the special tax.

Q. How long does the tax stay in effect?

A. The tax will stay in effect until the principal and interest on the bonds are paid off along with any reasonable administrative costs incurred in collecting the special tax or so long as it is needed to pay the expenses of services.

Q. How are Mello-Roos taxes affected when the property is sold?

A. The Mello-Roos tax is assessed against the land, but is not based upon the value of the property, therefore, the possible increased value of the property does not affect the amount of the tax when property is sold. The amount of the tax may not exceed the original maximum amount stated in the Resolution of Formation. Any delinquent payments must be satisfied before the sale of the real property since the unpaid amounts are a lien against the property.

This article is from "The Title Consumer", published by the California Land Title Association. Member companies of the CLTA are dedicated to facilitating the transfer of real property throughout California and increasing the public's awareness of the value and purpose of title insurance.
